MARKETING SCRIPTS |

Good communication can make or break your chances at being considered for a position, or establishing a connection with a new contact. Utilize these email marketing reach-out scripts to create a custom-tailored message that speaks to your purpose and value. Fields that are marked in orange are examples of where you would consider customizing your message to fit the role you are applying to, the organization or person to whom you are reaching out to, and your purpose for reaching out.

TIPS

- Keep it short, sweet, and to the point. Whether you are following up on a meeting or submitting a resume or application, your email communication should be treated as an introduction or reminder, not a cover letter.
- Include a few bits of intriguing information. Your goal is to pique their interest enough to compel them to want to open your resume and read it. Don't just say that you're qualified for the position; give them one or two examples of why.
- Tailor your communication in a way that shows you did the research. When talking about your experience, list 1 or 2 points that reference back to the requirements in the job description, or to the organization itself.
- If reaching out to a new contact or referral, avoid asking for favors right away, such as feedback on your resume, coffee meetings, or an informational interview. Your primary goal is to first establish a rapport.
- When reaching out to someone you don't know on LinkedIn, acknowledge that you don't know each other, and then give context around why you are reaching out to connect.
- Always make reference to the position you're applying to, and where you saw it. Recruiters get 100s of emails a day in reference to multiple positions, and won't always make the connection.
- When following up on an interview, reaffirm your interest in the role and the organization by making reference back to any team members you met, specific topics that were covered, or areas of interest pertaining to your background. Keep it concise and relevant.
- When submitting your resume to a general inquiry, meaning you're not applying to a specific position, or one is not immediately available, be direct about what kind of role you're seeking (specialization and level), what experience you have to offer in that area, where that could be an opportunity for them, and what specifically interests you about that organization. Close with a call to action suggesting a meeting or information interview to discuss your background and skills in more depth.

Please let me know if I can provide any additional information, and I look forward to hearing from you regarding next steps.

Sincerely,
Dana Leavy-Detrick

Marketing Script #12 | FOLLOWING UP ON AN INTERVIEW (Second Outreach)

Hello John-

I just wanted to follow up again in regards to last Thursday's interview for the Graphic Designer opportunity, and see if there was any additional feedback from the team. As mentioned, I feel completely confident that the role is an excellent fit for my background and experience, and where I'm looking to go next in my career.

Please feel free to reach out if I can provide any additional information.

Thank you,
Dana Leavy-Detrick

Marketing Script #13 | FOLLOWING UP ON AN INTERVIEW (Final Outreach)

Hello John-

I am following up again in regards to last Thursday's interview for the Graphic Designer opportunity. I wanted to also let you know about a possible change in my availability, and that I have a potential offer/project pending with another organization. However, the opportunity with Company XYZ would be my first choice, and if I am still in consideration for the role, please let me know if there is anything I can provide on my end to help move things forward.

Thank you,
Dana Leavy-Detrick

RECOMMENDATION |

Marketing Script #14 | Writing a Letter of Recommendation

You can customize this script on behalf of someone who will be providing you with a recommendation, or provide them with the basic outline as a guide to creating an impactful letter that highlights your contributions and skill sets.

Recommendation for:

[CANDIDATE NAME]
[JOB TITLE], [COMPANY NAME]

Dear Hiring Manager,

It is my pleasure to provide this letter of recommendation for [CANDIDATE NAME] whom I worked with [IN WHAT CAPACITY] at [COMPANY NAME].

Describe the responsibilities of the candidate and how they performed in the role:

As a knitwear designer within our women's group, Dana brought a measurable amount of expertise and creativity to the organization during her 5 years with the company. Her passion for exploring different techniques, yarns, and colors shines through in her vivid and feminine designs, several of which were shown at Mercedes Benz Fashion Week in New York. She was promoted on more than one occasion, and always received extremely positive reviews on her performance.

Describe specific attributes, talents, or skills that the candidate brought to the role or organization:

Her research skills, knowledge of the luxury market, and instinct for identifying trends make her a valuable asset to the team, as she truly understands the product and the needs of the customer. Dana has a unique eye for shape, proportion, and measurements that comes in handy as a liaison between product development, creative design, and buying teams.

Describe the candidate's relationships within the organization, and how they worked with others:

Dana's friendly and professional nature enabled her to build strong relationships with her peers, and establish a rapport with our various clients, suppliers, and vendor partners. Her ability to maintain and grow those relationships was key in being able to grow those accounts. Her colleagues and supervisors alike would describe her as a team player, honest, friendly, and open-minded – and always ready to lend a helping hand to her teammates.

Include any unique attributes or additional points that would be of interest to an employer:

Dana brings a unique multi-cultural background gained through her international work experience and personal love for travel. She is curious to explore other countries and continents, from which she brings back new ideas and creative inspiration. She would be a valuable asset to any company or brand seeking a knowledgeable, creative, and innovative designer.

Please feel free to contact me at [CONTACT INFO] with any additional questions.

Sincerely,

[REFERRAL NAME]
[JOB TITLE], [COMPANY NAME]

Marketing Script #15 | Asking for a Recommendation on LinkedIn

LinkedIn provides a built-in functionality through which you can ask your direct connections to write a recommendation to appear on your profile. Providing your contact with a personalized request outlining the key attributes that you'd like the recommendation to speak to will ensure they provide a valuable testimonial that highlights your most important traits and contributions. Keep it concise.

Dear [CONNECTION NAME],

As someone who's opinion and perspective I value, would you be open to writing a brief testimonial of my work based on our experience working together at [COMPANY NAME]? I am happy to provide a basic outline if that would be helpful. Based on the opportunities I am targeting, I would like to highlight:

- My ability to manage a high volume of projects and deliver results on time and budget
- The deep relationships that I have built with clients across multiple industries, and grow those relationships to support additional revenue streams.
- The fact that I have moved up quickly within the organization, and have continually increased my leadership responsibility.

Thanks in advance!
